narrative which we often refer to as “woke”: It’s not an activist movement because they already have equal rights under the law. It’s partially a political movement but their goals go far beyond putting candidates in government – A large part of the government is already on their side. They claim to stand against “capitalism” and corporate power, yet their movement is primarily funded by the very money elites they say they despise.

No, this movement is something different – It’s a system of blind belief and the invasion of a cult that worships itself, that worships power and seeks to undermine the truth whenever possible as a means to an end. We are witnessing history in the making; the birth of a monstrous religion of moral relativism.

To understand the political left and their tactics you have to understand their relationship with the globalists. Woke groups are a creation of the corporate/globalist regime. For decades think-tanks like the Ford Foundation and the Rockefeller Foundation have been grooming universities to produce a steady supply of cult members, all of them indoctrinated into a carefully crafted narrative that clings to socialism and uses victim status as a currency.

They abhor meritocracy and have delusions of equity. They demand an impossible Utopia that guarantees equal outcomes. They see self sufficiency as criminality; an attempt to escape from collective oversight. And they are more than willing to rationalize dishonesty, disinformation, deconstruction, chaos and murder as a means to get what they want.

As I’ve noted in the past, it’s difficult to combat a movement with no morals and no shame. If your purpose is to convince them to stop what they are doing using logic, data, common sense and appeals to conscience, talk about. It's the root of every one of their arguments.

That said, their concept of power is rather limited and childish.

For the woke, power is in cancel culture. Power is in the mob. Power is in displays of collective destruction and control. They ask themselves "What can we take from others, and how can we instill fear?" They believe the more they can take, the more power they have.

Globalists view power in a similar manner to leftists, but they expand on the manifesto with the question "How can we convince others to give us control willingly?"

Woke useful idiots see power as something that must be stolen through intimidation or force. Globalists see power as something that is handed to them by useful idiots. In order to get that power, globalists spend the vast majority of their energy and wealth on the manufacturing of consent. It's not enough to control the population, you have to make them believe that your oligarchy is THEIR IDEA. That way, they never try to fight back.

While woke activists are running around like monkeys with matches trying to burn down the world, globalists are looking at the activists and saying "How can I make those monkeys burn down the things I want them to burn down?"

Manufacturing consent from half the population of a nation requires a massive disinfo apparatus. I doubt that most leftists even realize their entire philosophy was funded and fabricated by corporate interests. And if you educate them on the fact that they are now allied with the same ultra-rich corporate vampires they say they hate, means of “winning.” In this way political leftists and the globalists are indelibly intertwined.

This is why I don't take arguments over the “false left/right paradigm” very seriously anymore. Sure, there are still Neo-Cons in the Republican Party that claim to be conservative when they are actually globalists and leftists. That's not the point. The point is, millions upon millions of regular people on the left have willfully chosen to side with the globalists and have specifically targeted conservative and patriot culture for destruction.

They are the enemy, just as much as the globalists are the enemy. Without the leftist mob the globalists have no power. It's time to accept this reality instead of falling back on the same old lazy argument: “But both sides are the problem...” No, only one side is the problem. They have always been the problem regardless of the political masks they wear.

If you look at the pyramid from the bottom-up, there is no such thing as the “false left/right paradigm” anymore. There is a VERY REAL left/right paradigm. The division is a fact of life. The lines have been drawn by the establishment; either you're with them or you're against them. There is no in-between.

In the film ‘The Cabinet Of Dr. Caligari’ an elite member of society turns a man into a monster through hypnosis, sending him to stalk the countryside to kill people the elite wants out of his way. The globalists have also used mesmerism to summon their own leftist monster whenever they need some dirty work done. There are two key pillars that they want leftists to tear down – People's perceptions of freedom and people's perceptions of objective fact.

supported. Also look at the hysterical climate change narratives and the calls for carbon restrictions that would inevitably lead to mass depopulation; once again largely supported by the political left.

Both agendas rely on the notion of an existential threat that requires people to sacrifice their freedoms on a micro-level. Yet, covid mandates suggest that we need to save the population from death while climate change mandates suggest that we need to kill most of the population to protect the environment. It doesn't make sense unless you understand that diminishing freedom is the ultimate point. Covid was never about saving lives and climate controls have nothing to do with saving the planet.

As for perceptions of objective fact, one need only look at the transgender movement to see that the very foundations of truth are under siege. If biology is subjective, if identity is subjective, if the genetic details we use to define and categorize our species are "social constructs" instead of facts, then almost any truth could be targeted. I believe that this attempt to make biological truth a matter of prerogative is done with the intent of making moral truth mutable.

If civilization is convinced to accept the surgical/chemical mutilation and sterilization of our youth, if we can be convinced to accept the sexualization of children from an early age, then we can easily be convinced to accept just about anything else. Pedophilia? Slavery? Murder? All in the name of hedonism posing as freedom.

By extension, the abandonment of universal truths will invariably lead to the rebuke of freedom itself. What is freedom really? Is it a legitimate concern for the future?

freedom can be dangerous; it might hurt or upset others. It might ruin the planet. Best to get rid of it entirely for the good of the collective...

It is an eternal dichotomy – Without truth there can be no freedom – Without freedom there can be no truth. On the dark side of that coin is the globalist/leftist dichotomy – Without the globalists there is no leftist mob, without the leftist mob the globalists will be erased.

Globalists are seeking to subjugate the world, and to do that they need to undermine the basic tenets of human interaction and understanding. They have allied with the political left in order to blitz the populace with chaos, keeping people distracted and off balance while the powers-that-be wrap their tentacles around every last vestige of private liberty.

Our greatest hope is for the citizenry to adopt a hostile posture and refuse to compromise another inch. We have to start calling the political left out for what they really are – The striking hand of the globalist cabal. There can be no give-and-take when it comes to our core principles. No more tolerance of deconstruction, no more slack given to saboteurs. If a subversive group is trying to tear down the moral fabric that makes the west functional and free, if they desire to eradicate the heritage that our founders fought to establish, then we must do as the founders did and remove the threat.

"We have to start calling the political left out for what they really are – The striking hand of the globalist cabal. There can be no give-and-take when it comes to our core principles."

It might have to come down to a breakup of the United States where the leftists and globalists have their states and those who want freedom have their states.

Eventually they will come out and openly worship the devil – if they think it will help them win – and if they think it will give them the freedom to do whatever evil they wish. Just like their ancestors did in ages long past.

Rude will be the awakening to see the devil does not give freedom or love.

Even more rude will be the realization that God will not put up with their mockery and evil indefinitely.

Seems the red horse is approaching at a gallop and springtime for snowflakes is around the corner.

"I have to admit that in my efforts to analyze and dissect far-left/globalist ideologies and agendas I have come to a point where I am just as fascinated as I am horrified."

We humans seem to have a built-in desire we realize that normalcy and not being challenged are not in fact what are true circumstances are.

History shows periods of time where things did not seem to change much. And that's where we learned to crave 'normalcy' in whatever way we experience that. But those relatively quiet times were fooling us. There was change always bubbling just below the surface... and that change was going to flower and become part of our new (next) sense of what was seen as normal.

And then we got to the 2000s when our form of government was ripped to shreds by the reaction to 9-11 and the emerging State of Wokeness that was going to consume everything in its path like a rabid lion. And those are the days in which we live today.

We have to embrace a new way of thinking and being. We are essentially living in a war zone with people around us who are trying to radically reshape our Nation and our way of life. And ourselves along with it. And to a great degree, they have succeeded.

But wait... along comes that 'Change' thing again to remind us that these insane times are not going to last forever and new change is once again bubbling under the Woke and troubled surface.

But we can't wait and hope that somehow things will automatically get better. We – those of us who still embrace sanity and ethics and values and the spiritual – have to

We are still in a war zone and we can't drop our guard for a moment.

A pervasive cult and hive-mind has taken over our Leadership Class and our Education system and our organized religions and our fake 'The Science!' and other social institutions. In many ways we are foreigners in our own land. We didn't ask to be displaced – but displaced we have become.

It always comes down to one simple question: Who Is Your God? Is it the true God of the Universe who gives us life and guidance and wisdom? Are You your own god? Is a political party your god? Is 'Woke' your god? Do you have no god at all?

The answer to the question of 'Who Is Your God' then determines everything else. It defines who you are and what you believe. It defines your present and your future. And it determines how much more pain and disillusion we are going to have to collectively live through until and unless sanity returns to our thoughts and our true God is restored to being the center of our lives.

The Commandment says you shall have no other Gods but the One. Pretty simple and smart advice from a Smart Mind that gave us the answer in our distant past and which desperately needs to become our present future... if we are to have a future at all.

Maybe one day we'll feel Normal again. But that day is not today.

I agree with most of what you have said. The problem comes when you start espousing about the one, true God. Sheep will always need to be led, unfortunately. Morality has no universal foundation, but some have innate morality. The 10 Commandments are a good start, but not everyone will accept them as true morality. What do you do with someone who likes to kill other people? What do you do with someone who likes to steal other peoples property? The myriad of these types of issues are handled very differently from group to group. It is only when the group craves to force their morality on another group that conflicts develop. How the groups handle that conflict is telling. Active or passive resistance? Acceptance? The decision will be an individual one. It will not be a group decision.

Ordinary Joe: "The problem comes when you start espousing about the one, true God. Sheep will always need to be led, unfortunately."

Yes Joe, Sheep will always need to be led. But that's the thing. Humans that each of us has a spark of the Divine inside of us. And, Divinity in any of its forms is not Sheep. We are here to be leaders even if only we lead ourselves.

"What do you do with someone who likes to kill other people? What do you do with someone who likes to steal other peoples property?"

Such a person has turned his or her back on their Divine nature. As such, they need to be isolated and punished as they are a danger to all other life forms.

"It is only when the group craves to force their morality on another group that conflicts develop... The decision will be an individual one. It will not be a group decision."

It will be both. As a Society we have a duty to protect all others' lives and property. But beyond that, no group should force its own chosen beliefs upon others. It is at that point that individual choice and morality takes over. And we as individuals are only responsible for our own thoughts, actions, and deeds. We are rewarded or punished for how we use our freedom of choice of behavior.

But for those who abuse their right of choice to chose certain harmful lives and property of others. It is They who thus imprison themselves – and Society is only doing what it must to protect itself.

Finally. Glad someone had the courage to say the obvious out loud. We are entering into another age of "inquisition" with the same crowd consolidating their power. There was nothing "Christian" about the Spanish Inquisition, it was always based on the accumulation of power. The Crusades were about consolidating power. The Jihad is about consolidating power. Any religious efforts undertaken to consolidate power is not worthy of support. Period. Same goes for the left's religion of collectivism. Someone will be "in charge" and that megalomaniac will ensure the destruction of everything in order to achieve power.

As the saying goes, same old, same old. The sheep want to be led and there will always be someone around to lead them.
